PLANNED BROOKLINE HOTEL.

Toby and Mrs. Hayes, who are alleged forgers, was said to be one of seventeen aggregating $25,000 out of Schwab's portfolio, were connected with a $100,000 plan to erect the Hotel Chatham in Brookline, Mass. The woman told Toby she had Schwab's backing for a million, but the scheme fell through and Toby failed.

It was in an attempt to make Schwab liable for the claims of Toby's creditors that George K. Win. Tobey, attorney for the Tobey estate trustee, questioned Mitchell about the Schwab loan.

Joseph also interrogated Mitchell about a supposed $50,000 guarantee Schwab gave Mrs. Hayes for another hotel enterprise, the Boston Hotel, which likewise failed to materialize.

NOT CONSULTED BY SCHWAB.

"Mr. Schwab never consulted me about this so-called guarantee," replied the witness "moreover, it was none of my business to inquire about it."

Mitchell denied Schwab's $25,000

loan to the shrewd woman promoter was for the Chatham's financing in any of Toby's affairs. He refused to state the reason for the refusal, saying it was not pertinent to the Tobey bankruptcy case.

The earthquake was not of volcanic origin but caused by violent dropping of the earth's surface, according to an official communication issued here which quotes Dr. Tanihara, Nakamura, professor of the Imperial Tokyo University, and a geological authority.

The seismologist holds that the first and heaviest shocks arose from a violent disturbance of the level of the earth's crust in the district marked by the dotted line on the map between Osaka and Kyoto, to the north of the Mura Peninsula. This disturbance originated in the sea bottom near Ito, he holds.

The earthquake was supposed to have originated very near the naval base of Yokohama and to have affected that district. Two other specialists in seismology endorse these views, the communication declares.

WORLD'S GREATEST RUM RESORT IS PLANNED IN BAHAMAS

BACKED BY UNLIMITED CAPITAL

English Prober Amazed at Colossal Rum Running to United States

By JOHN T. BURKE
London, Sept. 12.—Booting, smuggling alcoholic liquor into the United States, and supplying the smugglers with intoxicants, from Europe, is the most profitable, most risky, and most scandalous business in the world today.

This is the opening charge in a story written by M. Lewington Wiley, special correspondent of the London Daily News, who has just returned from an investigation of rum smuggling into America from Nassau and other islands of the Bahamas to Miami, the Jersey coast and New York, where "powerful, vulgar bootleggers, thugs, and racketeers" are active.

In his first installment Wiley tells of teaching the first day at Nassau on New Providence Island with a man who had made a fortune in rum running and whose brother had been sent up for five years for bootlegging in the United States, and who was expected soon to be freed.

Wiley says that the big English distilleries have agents over here who are directing this lawless traffic, and declared that he knows an English agent who is now in the Bahamas, and who is expected to be released in the near future.

"This would enable the smugglers to ship unlimited liquor into the United States. If the scheme materializes it will be one of the most magnificent disasters under the British flag."

"As for Nassau itself it is estimated that more than 100,000,000 worth of whiskey is smuggled into the United States in the form of rum, and that the profits are enormous."

"Later on in New York I heard mild complaints from American officials that British authorities in the West Indies connived at the liquor smuggling, but before America can find fault with British officials, she must deal with the bribery, graft, and corruption that is rampant among her own."

U. S. DRINKERS HAND BERNUDA $157,204.80
Hamilton, Bermuda, Sept. 12.—Americans who buy liquor from smugglers contributed indirectly $157,204.80 to the government of Bermuda in the form of an export tax of $2.40 on each case shipped from the island between April 1, 1922, and September 1 last.

During this period rum runners have taken out of Bermuda more than thirty thousand cases, as well as forty-one barrels of liquor, all of which found a market in New York and vicinity. This is a total of more than 120,000 bottles, which at an average price of $1.28 a bottle would mean a return of $153,600.00 on goods that were brought here for about $1,000,000.

N. Y. MAN LEADS
Most of this business has been carried on by a New York man, who so far has been successful in finding all his shipments. The purchase price of this man's cargoes average $446,613 for 20,242 cases, or $22.05 a bottle, which, if retained at $2.40 a bottle, would mean a return of $49,008.00. This man's cargoes average $446,613 for 20,242 cases, or $22.05 a bottle, which, if retained at $2.40 a bottle, would mean a return of $49,008.00.

CARGOES NOW FEWER
During the past few weeks fewer cargoes destined for the American market have left Hamilton. This, it is said, has been due to the fact that larger steamers going direct from England and Scotland to New York are able to undercut the smaller vessels engaged in trading on a smaller scale out of Bermuda.

BARRING OF WOMEN FROM JURY DUTY URGED AT HEARING

EXEMPTION ALSO OPPOSED FOR PROFESSIONAL MEN

Suggestions for ameliorating the defects of the jury system, made to the legislative jury commission at a State House hearing, were:

Eliminate women from juries. Compulsion serves only to add to the number of delinquents now denoting American life.

Restrictions excluding doctors, lawyers, teachers, and ministers from juries should be removed. Citizens who have had the advantage of higher education should be drafted into jury service.

SERVICE DEMORIALIZED. The bench should place more reliance upon the decision of the juries. Lack of respect for jury verdicts by the court is demoralizing jury service and is the chief cause of the average man's dislike for jury duty.

Juries should be appointed by a selective process. Only men of known ability and character should be considered.

WOULD CORRECT EVILS. The question of whether or not women were to serve on juries was decided by public referendum.

WOULD CORRECT EVILS. Frank W. Grinnell, secretary of the Massachusetts Bar Association, was emphatic in his attack on the present jury system. Urging that drastic steps be taken to correct existing evils, he declared that conditions in courtrooms during trials were not conducive to good work on the part of juries.

Grinnell also urged that women should not be compelled to sit on juries. The jury box, he declared, was no place to compel a woman to sit. Such compulsion, he said, would only tend to add to the distractions already overburdening American family life and could end in disaster for the American family. An optional system, under which women might serve if they so desired, was urged by Grinnell.

GLUCOSTER SOLVES PROBLEM. A. P. Burelian, chairman of the Gloucester board of registrars, declared that Gloucester had solved the jury problem by a system consisting ing in soliciting lists of names from employers with each employer's ability, position and character listed. This system, he declared, was producing wonderful results.

WANTS WOMEN TO SERVE. Mrs. Frank W. Page, deputy election commissioner of Boston, denounced the movement towards a further centralization of power with commissioners. She urged that women be allowed to serve on juries without further legislation. Should Massachusetts allow women to serve on juries, she said, there would be an end to the habit of judges winking at juries and offering instructions as to how verdicts should be reached. Judges, she declared, are to interpret the law, not to instruct juries how to reach verdicts.

GIRL TELLS OF RHODE ISLAND SHOOTING

HUB BEST BABY TO BE PICKED AT SHOW

September 22 at Harrisville. Attorney Hingan in entering a plea of not guilty for the accused girl said:

"We make no pretense that there was no assault but assert it was done in circumstances such as to warrant her assault on Smith. She acted on provocation. Smith told her two different stories. Neither is the truth. I promise sensational developments when this case is tried."

The attorney added: "If Smith had told a story that came anywhere near the truth she would undoubtedly have told her own story to the police freely. But when he came out in the first place with a story that has been proven to be false, and later with other stories which she knew to be false, it was useless for her to have attempted to make public her own version of the alleged events."

"It was evident that his intention in publishing these stories was to shield himself. The same motive upon his part would lead him to concoct a new story to disprove any statement he might say. Under the circumstances the only thing for her to do was to remain silent."

At no time has any credit made any attempt to avoid arrest. She has not left the city, nor taken any other step out of the ordinary routine of her life. At all times she has been available had the police sought her. At no time did Smith mention her name in connection with the affair. It would not be reasonable for her to come forward and reveal herself so long as no one accused her."

Boston wants better babies.

That's the principal objective of the Boston Health Show, which starts at Mechanics Hall, October 6 and lasts a week.

"Undoubtedly the principal feature of interest will be the health contest, in which more than a thousand youngsters under the age of six will compete for an enviable title, viz.,

"Boston's best baby." The health show will be conducted with the cooperation of the New England Pediatric Society, members of the Boston dental profession and a large corps of nurses.

All babies living in Boston and vicinity under the age of six are eligible to compete. Entries are now being received, and when the 1200 mark is reached the list will be closed.

Children rating highest in physical and mental development will receive awards in the form of savings accounts opened in Boston banks in their names. Twins and triplets will be given special classification and special awards. October 11 has been set aside as "Twins' Day."

For the purpose of the baby show, a baby house made of glass, covering 2,000 square feet of space, will be erected.

A valuable feature will be the consultation service whereby each mother will be fully informed and given expert advice. Entry applications should be addressed at once to Henry Copley Greene, secretary Boston Health Show, No. 1001 City Hall Annex, Boston. There are no entry fees or other charges.

GRACE MOULTON.

Lovely Miss Grace Moulton, the 20-year-old Cambridge girl who was referred to leave town in a mysterious letter signed "Ku Klux Klan" is nearly of the same proportions as was Venus, the goddess of old.

A comparison of the following table shows how near the Cambridge girl is to the goddess of other days:

	Venus	Miss Moulton
Neck	12 1/4 inches	13 inches
Arm	12 inches	11 inches
Bust	34 1/2 inches	35 inches
Waist	25 1/2 inches	28 inches
Hips	36 inches	35 inches
Thighs	19 1/2 inches	24 inches
Calves	13 1/2 inches	14 inches
Ankles	8 1/2 inches	8 inches
Height	5 feet four	5 feet four

The attorney maintained, however, that Smith's assertion that he did not know the correct identity of the young woman was absolutely false.

"Of course he knew her name and her true name," he said. "They had been out together many times, and it is absurd for him to claim that he did not know who she was. His contention is simply a part of his effort to keep the truth from coming out. He has not wanted the truth to come out. The intent of all his stories has been to keep the truth hidden and to keep the identity of the young woman from becoming known."

Larry Gillsberry, the husband of the jailed girl, returned today from New York to tell the police what he knows of the affair. Although Smith accused him of putting his wife up to the alleged blackmail, the wife exonerated her husband of any connection at all with the shooting.

LITTLE BOY KILLED BY AUTO LIES UNCLAIMED IN MORGUE

IDENTITY IS FOUR-DAY MYSTERY

County to Bury Child Unless Body Is Cared for at Early Date

For four days and four nights, anxious parents have filed past the slab in the Northern Mortuary, where lies the unidentified body of a boy, about fifteen years old, killed by a truck of the American Railroad Express Company as he rode a bicycle north on Tremont street between West street and Temple place.

So far, the authorities have received no information which might lead to identification of the body.

The boy was run over by a truck operated by Albert H. Morse, No. 52 Hampshire street, Cambridge, about 7 o'clock Friday night. His body was found in the Harvard station, where he was pronounced dead upon arrival. The body was returned to the Northern Mortuary, where it has remained since 7:30 o'clock Friday night. Morse was arrested on charge of manslaughter and later released on bail.

The dead boy was five feet four inches tall and weighed 115 pounds. His complexion was light, and his hair rather long. He wore a gray suit and gray knickerbockers. His shoes and stockings were black. His cap was gray, and his necktie of black knit material. He wore a blue chambray shirt. His underwear was white. Inside his coat was a label bearing the word "Talbots."

There were no identifying marks on the bicycle. The trade name was missing. The bicycle had been red and had been painted black, evidently by an amateur, probably by the boy who rode it. The flat though scuffed, showed the original red paint. Bits of wire, and crumpled metal, indicated the bicycle had been repaired several times by its owner.

SLANDER CLUE

A bundle wrapped in a Boston newspaper, contained three pairs of men's black socks, one green sock, an old shoe brush, and a light pin of black paint. In the boy's pockets, the authorities found a slip of paper marked "Pemberton Inn, August 19." Other writing on the paper was unrecognizable.

Inquiries at the Pemberton Inn, at Hull, proved fruitless. The body remains unidentified. Unless someone identifies and claims it it will be buried at the expense of the county.

SLAIN PRINCE LIKED TO SEE WOMEN IN PAIN

Universal Service Cable

London, Sept. 12.—Sir Edward Hall Marshall, counsel for Princess Palmy, began his fight for her life at the Old Bailey Court, where she is being tried for the murder of her husband, with a denunciation of the slain Egyptian Prince as "an abnormal brute who gloied in the sufferings of women."

Much testimony in connection with Prince Palmy's relations with his French bride are unprintable, but the defense brought out through the testimony of witnesses, including the assistant manager, the doctor and servants at the Savoy, where the crime was committed, that the woman had "suffered terribly."

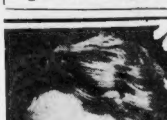

The tragedy followed a quarrel over a threat by the Princess that she would get a divorce.

Sir Edward Hall declaring that Miss Palmy had only received $2,500 of the $10,000 of the Prince's "bridal gift" because she had refused to hand over a fortune in jewels to her husband who had great wealth of his own.

He then dilated on the almost incredible cruelty of "this treacherous Egyptian," and added:

"She had written a letter which was only to be opened in case of her death, but which is now in court and which will unmask this Oriental brute and reveal the horrors to which she has been subjected since she was turned to Egypt by the man who broke her down and made her a helpless, hopeless, nervous wreck."

Fight for $400,000

Thomas F. Mandell, well-known polo player and journalist, son of George F. Mandell, publisher of the Boston Transcript and nationally known newspaper man, attempted to conceal his identity by declaring himself to be a printer, when he filed intentions to marry Miss Gertrude Clark, Boston society girl.

Miss Clark declines publicity, so does Mandell. Accordingly, Mandell quietly went to the marriage registry office in City Hall, and applied for a license. When the clerk, in filling out the blanks, came to the word "occupation," Mandell answered:

"Printer."

Miss Clark is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, No. 256 Beacon street, Back Bay. She is a junior at Smith College, and prominent in society circles. She is a member of the Vincent Club, Junior League, and the Sewing Circle. She is a graduate of the Winsor School.

Mrs. L. W. MAYALL, VIOLET L. WELLINGTON, 121 St. Stephen street, Back Bay, charges her sister, Mrs. L. W. Mayall of Oxford, with inducing her seventy-five-year-old father to make Mrs. Mayall his only heir in a will made just before he died.

Miss Wellington, through her attorney, William A. Morse, has filed a suit for $250,000. The estate is valued at $400,000. She further claims that she signed several papers, the contents of which have been falsely presented to her by her sister.

TRIAL OF WARD IS UNDER WAY

prosecution believe they will be able to show beyond question that Ward killed Peters and that his one formal explanation for the crime, given in a brief statement, typed in the office of his attorneys, is a "mass of falsehoods."

The nub of the statement was that Peters was a member of a band which had extorted money from Ward in furtherance of a blackmail plot.

By direct proof the State will try to show that Peters could not possibly have had a direct hand in a blackmail plot, if there was such. Pursuing this line further, the Attorney-General and his aides expect to challenge Ward to prove there ever was a blackmail plot.

LINK WARD IN PLOT.

They say circumstances point to but one possible situation plot—none in which Walter Ward had joined in the gambling world to bring money from his own father, George H. Ward.

The State will insist, and legal authorities will support this contention, that it is strictly "up to" Ward to prove his victim was a member of a blackmail ring. And here enters the possibility of the second most surprising of the trial, the possible production of "surprise witnesses."

Ward, in his brief formal statement, asserted the principal blackmailers were one "Rogers," one "Rose," and Clarence Peters or "Pete." The State would not be surprised if "Rogers" and "Rose" are called to the stand in behalf of Ward. One authority pointed out yesterday:

"If either Rose or Rogers take the stand, neither could be successfully cross-examined by the State. For both could duck pertinent queries on the broad ground of incrimination and degradation."

"This would get before the jury in convincing fashion the intended effect that Ward actually was being blackmailed to conceal some important family secret."

Bank Loans Cash to Couples for Divorce Costs

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 12.—Lack of funds no longer need prove a hindrance to animated couples who would obtain divorces if they had money enough to pay attorney fees and court costs, according to A. M. Coster, of Johnstown, who is connected with the Community Saving & Loan Company of that city.

In an address here before the Retail Credit Men's Association, Mr. Coster stated that the newest thing in banking is the extension of credit to couples who seek legal freedom. He described the system inaugurated by the Johnstown concern, and stated that not a dollar had been lost through loans made to those seeking to sever marital relations.

ATLANTIC CITY AGAIN HONORS 'MISS BOSTON'

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 12.—With the departure of all of the seventy-four literary beauties with the exception of two, Miss Boston and Miss Detroit, the contest is but a dream of the past.

Miss Boston has been honored by the management of the Hotel Hamilton Hall and invited to remain here two more days as their guest and this time the honor was readily accepted by Miss Black and her mother.

The morning was spent by Miss Black in visiting the studio of Baron Scottford, where she had additional photographs "snapped." Later she visited the famous Vidor Pine and posed for several pictures in front of a statue of King Neptune.

She was the dinner guest of Miss Freiberger, daughter of one of Philadelphia's leading merchants, at their summer home in Ventnor City and later on in the evening visited the Klunkerhooker hotel, where she and Miss Detroit spent the evening dancing.

PRISON HEADS TO SPEAK HERE

Boston prison officials and probation officers are preparing to receive here this week the delegates to the fifty-third annual convention of the American Prison Association, also the National Conference of Juvenile Agencies and the National Probation Association. The headquarters will be at the Hotel Brunswick and the meetings will be held in the Rogers Building in the old Tech group in the Back Bay.

Among those who will speak on prison problems will be Thomas Mott Osborne, founder of the Mutual Welfare League and former warden of Sing Sing and the naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H.; Joseph P. Fishman, former auditor of the Department of Justice and a foe to "county jails"; J. S. Blitch, superintendent of the Ralston, Fla., State farm, who will speak on "Florida's Solution of Prison Reform," and many other noted prison experts.

Major Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing, will preside over the convention, which will continue for seven days.

ATTLEBORO BANK STARTS "TAX CLUB"

Attleboro, Sept. 12.—There have been thrift clubs, vacation clubs and Christmas savings clubs in operation here for several years, but the latest form of making it easy for the wage earner to meet obligations which retards saving, has been devised by the First National Bank of Attleboro, which proposes to start a tax club. Property owners will be asked to divide their current tax by 12, and put away that amount each week as a saving fund. When the 1924 tax bill arrives, a check will be available to meet the amount required.

SAV ENGINEER AT FAULT IN WRECK

Stephen T. Gethman, chief engineer of the Pull River express, wrecked at Reading, causing two deaths and a score of injuries, has been blamed for the wreck. General Superintendent R. D. Pittman said that New Haven road says that Anderson was crossing the switch at the scene of the wreck at a speed four times greater than his order called for.

DOUBLE PROBE ON.
A double investigation of the cause of the wreck is on today by members of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Massachusetts Public Utilities Commission. Agents of both commissions met in the office of Division Superintendent of the Road Waterbury, Conn. to discuss the wreck.

ETNA MARIN.
The report of the officials of this section, the railroad was presented to the investigators and the train crew and all available witnesses to the accident were called. Chief Inspector Henry W. Howard and Inspector M. J. Sullivan and Timothy Connor of the State Public Utilities Commission, represented the State. Both agents of the State and Interstate Commerce Commission declare the investigation will be an exhaustive one, covering every angle of the case.

SECOND WRECK AVERED.
While officials of the railroad were investigating the cause of the Reading wreck a second wreck was narrowly averted at Attleboro, where a train ran on the locomotive of the Pittsburgh express broke and smashed a hole in the steam box of the engine. The engineer and fireman struck their heads and brought the train to a stop within 200 feet. Engineer J. M. Anderson and Fireman H. H. Carter then drew the fire from the boiler to prevent it from exploding. The train was derailed by another engine. Ten parlor cars, loaded with passengers, escaped the train.

New York, Sept. 12.—Drugs have wrecked the romance and marriage of Eric G. Landgren, president of the Vulcan Motor Company, he charged in a divorce suit against Mrs. May Annabelle Landgren former society beauty of the Pacific Coast.

He thought she was his ideal beauty, the women say, but he has discovered she has a "mean woman" temper with none of the loving sympathetic qualities he saw in her before marriage.

WIFE WAS DIVORCED.
She has caused him "constant tortures," he alleges, and adds that a broken hand, a stripped apartment, a diminished fortune, and two dogs are all that are left of the romance.

WIFE WAS DIVORCED.
She formerly lived in San Francisco and Louisville. They were married in St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco, May 13, 1921.

POISON HOME AGAIN
Agnes Rita McCarthy, of No. 174 Pleasant street, Mulden, former Louisville, Ky., who took poison at Washington and died in the hospital, was found to have taken it home again.

GAS COMPANY DRIVER INJURED IN CRASH
James Farmer, driver for the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, received scalp wounds and lacerations of the head when his truck collided with a Boston & Middlesex street car on River street and Abchurch lane, West Newton. Farmer is twenty-five years old, and lives at 128 Commonwealth avenue, Allston.

7-CENT CAR FARE
DENIED NEW JERSEY
Trenton, N. J., Sept. 12.—Federal Judge Heintzelman denied the application of special counsel for the state board of public utility commissions for a dismissal of the temporary injunction restraining the board from putting into effect the seven cent fare on the public service railway company line.

HARTMAN AND WOMAN HE DUPED

"Don't make me laugh," said Otto Hartman, Chicago belhop, after he had been dined lavishly by "Newport 1400," who took him for Captain Duane of the Intercollegiate tennis team. But doesn't Otto look like society? It was on Mrs. Arthur Curtis' magnificent yacht "Albion" that he was arrested.

7,000 FACING WATER FAMINE IN MANSFIELD

Mansfield, Sept. 12.—Nearly 7,000 people face a water famine here in three days, Town Manager Ernest E. Lathrop announced.

Mr. Lathrop issued a statement asking the citizens to curtail their household use of water until rain relieves the drought. The town water supply comes from a series of artesian wells driven in the south of the town.

Two miles west of the town is an old mine holding deposits of coal. This mine has been refilled recently to produce fuel. If there is a shortage this winter, pumping of the mine has been going on since early summer and many people living nearby have complained of their wells going dry.

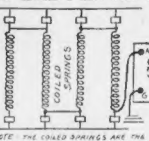

Citizens claim that the ground water shortage has been caused by the pumping of the mine. They are tempted to move to prevent further work until the drought passes. Some townspeople claim that the coal is more valuable than water and oppose the move to stop mine operations.

MILLIONS FOR HEIRS 'DREAM' OF WOMAN

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Three hundred members of the Springer heirs, Inc., met and laid formal farewell to their dreams of getting a half billion out of Wilmington, Del., real estate. The gathering was the annual business meeting of the corporation formed last March of the descendants and heirs of Charles Christopher Springer, who died in 1778.

According to the claims made by the corporation he owned most of the real estate where now stands the city of Wilmington, and the corporation was formed to prove the claims of the heirs and collect the real estate.

Attorney W. H. Chadwick presented a signed statement from Mrs. Mary Springer McMahon, originator of the Springer heirs organization, in which she admitted that her claims were false. The "millionaire" of the records which would prove the claim, the $250,000,000 in Philadelphia, and a "millionaire" in Sweden just turning with jewels and precious heirlooms. The attorney said, were all myths.

SAGUS POLICE NEW GEORGIAN CAFE TERA IN BACK BAY

The Sagus police force was called out to disperse a mob of several hundred persons who attempted to rescue a prisoner from the Lincoln Square, Cliftondale.

The prisoner, Anthony Flaminio, of Backwood avenue, Cliftondale, was accused with two companions who escaped by George Yong, proprietor of a laundry in Lincoln square, of having beaten him and attempting to loot his cash drawer.

Yong told the police the three men entered his establishment, and while one engaged him in conversation the other two attempted to open his cash drawer. When he remonstrated, one of the men struck him with his fist and another swung at him with a club. The third struck him on the head with a rock.

Yong grasped a pan containing hot water and poured the contents on the three men. The latter fled and the Chinaman pursued them, station in hand, through the square. A crowd of residents, in turn, took up a chase of Yong, hurling stones at his rear.

Yong escaped.

The three fugitives finally escaped into the woods. Flaminio was later picked up by Patrolman Mansfield, and identified him as one of his associates. It was then that the mob gathered in front of the laundry and demanded the release of the prisoner.

Flaminio was looked on a charge of disorderly conduct and held in $100 bail. Yong came to Boston to be treated by a Chinese physician.

On Our Block

Getting Freckles and Sunburn Out of a Bottle

Or the Secret of the 1923 Bathing
Girl, Who Is Swarthy on the Beach in the Morning and Lily White the Same Evening

The Electric Light Sunburn: Showing Miss Mary Llewellyn of San Francisco, Acquiring a "Healthy" Tan.

THREE women sat under a striped umbrella on a white beach. Their bathing suits were of the Paris variety—too fragile to withstand salt-water, but very alluring to the eye. They were blonde, brunette, all but non-existent, with skirts little more than frills high above rolled stockings.

The first woman was a golden beauty—copper-colored hair and a skin that presumably once was of the texture and shade of peach petals. But to achieve was all but obliterated by hundreds of freckles. They were big and little, dull and bright.

The second woman, the one with brown hair, was tanned to a shining mahogany brown, guileless of freckles. And the third was burned a deep, "half-cherry" red which you some way felt continued beneath the narrow belt that was her corset and below her daintily rolled socks.

The brown woman looked at the red woman and the red woman looked at the spotted one and they all smiled together.

"I must say they did a good job," commented a voice from behind the freckle screen.

"My dear, I'd never have believed it! I went there pale as a ghost—a positive sight I assure you in this summer place—and came out fifteen minutes later looking as if I'd been lying on the sand for ages!"

"White and frail as lilies for the ball to-night."

The medical world views with approval the new tendency of women to remain natural—when, of course, naturalness and so on are applied by the sun.

Dr. Mary Halton, specialist on maladies having to do with women, explained why women should be proud of sun discolorations.

"Nearly everyone knows," stated Dr. Halton, "that the freckle is due to pigment under the skin. It is not in the upper of the two layers of the epidermis—but the one below, the true skin, though it shows in the epidermis."

"Therefore, the discoloration may be removed only by something which will reach to the true skin. And if that something should make the tiniest mark in the true-skin there would remain a scar for all time."

"Most of the freckle-removers are made of bichloride of mercury. They are designed to penetrate the epidermis and remove the freckle. Instead they burn off the top layer of skin and the lower one as well, leaving a permanent scar. The only harmless freckle remover, which as often as not is in no way effective, is cotton soaked in strong peroxide of hydrogen applied several hours. Occasionally a little of the chemical seeps through the epidermis to the true skin and bleaches."

"However there is another method, an intricate and expensive one, by which pigmentation may be bleached. It is with a tiny radium pencil. Each freckle must be touched by the tube which only the most experienced operator can handle. Of course hours are spent in clearing a speckled face."

"And the discouraging part of it is that the very next morning on the beach may bring each and every freckle straight back again!"

And many women likewise run ragged the beauty parlors in the cities, where they buy the look of sea or mountains for wearing through the day.

The strange feature of the whole circumstance is that freckles are approved and in style this Summer for the first time in many years. Tan and sunburn as well—anything to present the look of fresh-air permeation. This is the thing desired.

So far has the fashion struggle that many a contest has been held for beautiful women back-grounding the most freckles or the deepest shade of brown. Even freckled children have held contests, and in New York City where a spectacular one raged, little Winifred and Mary Lenney were declared joint winners, the judges insisting that never before had two small faces been so all but concealed by ginger-bread spots.

While on the subject, one only may mention that certain beaches

This at nine of the clock in the morning. At six in the evening the girls would turn in for bed for beach beauties waiting to be undone and again become conventional ballroom ladies. A dab of cleansing cream in getting—undone! Freckles, sunburn, tan would vanish like dreams!

Does it sound wildly idyllic of Summer at the shore? Well it may. But no matter how fantastic, it is a picture taken from life. For it is the humor of the moment that Madame shall look like the true out-of-door woman. But she also feels that she —what could be sweeter?" the third commented—the sunburned one.

And their eyes turned down the leafy-sugar beach a way to a building like a Swiss chalet painted green. A neat glass square at the side of the door bore a surmount—a French one. Their heads nodded. All things connected with the green chalet had their sanction. They were seeking it as it looked inside at that morning hour—a great space honeycombed with tiny cells, each big enough to hold a revolving chair, a chest of every sort of liquid—powder, tint, steel, soap-cream and so on—ever used for the beautification of femininity.

In each chair a woman would be reclining at the hour and a sheeted figure doing something to her face. A massage? A bleach? No, indeed! In one cell an attendant would be waiting with a crayon of lead-pencil size touching Madame's face, shoulders—and knees—here and there, ever skillfully. And each point touched at once would prove parking space for a freckle!

In another cell one might find proof that sunburn all too often comes out of a glass jar—sunburn cream and sunburn powder, and the whole overcoat with an invisible lacquer to hold it against perspiration. Of course, Madame, who preferred sunburn would be undergoing the same experience, though with red tint cosmetics instead of the pale coffee color so much admired on the beach.

Medbury Says

By John P. Medbury

A WELLKNOWN college professor says the trouble with our popular songs is that the composers don't use good English in them. He should know, for there are thousands of songs—songs that are well written and those that are not.

We are in school to study English and nobody would think of trying to learn grammar from a volume of "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

EVERY lyric writer knows how to speak perfect English, but he's not going to ruin his songs by using it.

It's all right for a man to speak differently, provided he puts his words to music.

A MEDIZO covers up a multitude of grammatical errors.

THE only thing a song writer wants to have perfect is his name on the royalty checks.

IT doesn't care if the check is wrong grammatically, as long as it's okay numerically.

THE cashier can put the name anywhere he wants to, just so he can fix the numbers in the right place.

"YES, We Have No Bananas" has already sold over two million copies and can you imagine how badly the authors must feel to learn that they made three or four mistakes in grammar in the chorus?

AFTER it sells two million more copies they'll probably discover all something is wrong with the stanza.

SCHOOL children are still taught to recite "The Village Blacksmith," "Little Boy Blue" and "Paul Revere's Ride," but out in the yard during recess you hear them reciting "Barney Google with his long-go-go-go eye."

IT ISN'T necessary for popular songs to be well written. The teachers in our public schools wouldn't mind some copies of "Oh, You Said a Piece of Cake" as text books.

modern literature. Future books for THE LATEST WAY OUT.

You have had things too easy in your life—in fact you have never engaged in any undertaking which appeared to you as a proposition, which would mean difficult and serious problems for you to solve.

Loaded the issue everytime it was up to you to take the initiative in any hard matter to solve. You were to be sure, but out of today if you had accepted your share of the hard things of life and taken your duty instead of making the easiest way.

What have you been up against which would make you get right down to the best of which you are capable?

Still you consider the men who have been more successful than you are "lucky," and you believe your own poor standing to be due to your poor luck.

Hard luck—you are always crying it.

Short in financial background and worried about the future, because you have always looked for the easiest way out.

One very busy morning after going in to answer to a knock only to see into the eyes of one of my own offspring, I decided to call a halt. Soon after a loud rap came at the door and I yelled out, "No trunks allowed." In walked the son man with a broad grin on his face. In my after surprise and embarrassment it never occurred to me to make any explanation.
